Adam expands workforce, office space

Updated 24 February 2009

SA Internet Service Provider, Adam Internet is defying the economic downturn by expanding its workforce and office space to keep up with customer demand.

In the latest quarter, Adam Internet has made 23 new appointments including two senior roles.

Adam Internet now occupies eight of the 11 floors in its King William Street building, refurbishing two floors to accommodate new employees.

"During the past 12 months, we have won a number of major contracts and awards and have consistently signed up around 1,800 customers per month, so the demand for our service is very high," says Adam Internet MD, Scott Hicks.

"Fortunately, our sector is one of the few that isn't feeling the effect of the global credit crunch, with the next few years tipped to show continued, strong growth."
